

MARGATE

MARGATE is a watering-place, sea port town, and parish, in the parish of St. John, in Ringslow hundred and the Isle and union of Thanet, lathe of St. Augustine, East Kent. The parish contained, in 1851, a population of 10,099 : St. John's, 4,913 ; Trinity, 5,186, not having much increased of late years ; the town, in 1851, contained 9,107 inhabitants. Margate is much frequented as a watering-place, for which it is well adapted from its situation, having an easy and quick access both by steamboat and railway. It is improving fast, having many handsome houses now building ; it is also well paved and lighted with gas. The Esplanade is parallel to the Marine Terrace, and extends a quarter of a mile in length. With the piers, Margate possesses the advantage of excellent promenades, and its shore for bathing is very good. The lighthouse is on the pier, and a fine view is obtained from it. The Church of St. John the Baptist, an ancient edifice, is built of rough flint, with a square tower and eight bells; there is a fine organ. The living is a vicarage, in the gift of the Archbishop of Canterbury; Rev. T. E. Ashley is the vicar, and the Rev. R. J. Bird is the curate. Trinity Church was built in 1825, but this fabric has not any endowment for the minister, the Rev. Mr. Prosser. The Wesleyan Methodist Chapel is in Hawley Square; the Roman Catholic Chapel is in Princess Crescent; Zion Chapel, Addington Square ; Ebenezer Chapel, New Street ; the Seamen's Chapel is opposite Zion Place ; the Calvinist Chapel is in Love Lane. The Town Hall is a plain building near the market; in it are held the weekly petty sessions, and monthly meetings of the town commissioners. The Droit Office is at the end of the pier, and is a handsome building with a portico ; it has an illuminated clock. The Custom House is on a small scale. The Post Office is in Cecil Square. The Theatre is a convenient building. The Royal Hotel is again opened for visitors; the Assembly Rooms, Billiard Rooms, and Coffee Rooms, are attached, and opened daily, during the season, for concerts and balls. There is also a Reading Room, which contains 2,500 volumes, and is well supplied with newspapers and periodicals, and is opened daily to the subscribers. The Museum of the Institution has a fine collection of English birds : acting Hon. Secretary, Mr. John Poussett. The Royal Sea-bathing Infirmary is at West-brook. The Gas Works belong to Margate, Ramsgate, and Broadstairs Company ; they are situated in Dane.
